BACKGROUND

I started my career as a camera trainee in 1999 on 35mm feature films. After this I decided that I was going to submerge myself into an in depth technical grounding from where I could progress my career, and so worked at ARRI full time initially as an equipment delivery van driver, then as an in house film camera technician for 2 years. I was very fortunate to have worked with the late Bill Lovell at Arri who was key in developing the concept of 35mm digital Arri cameras, the D20/D21 which we all now know as the Alexa. I left Arri to go freelance and worked as a Clapper Loader, working on many feature films, dramas, commercials, music videos, and concerts.
